2. From 17 to 20 January, the former concentration camp and Panzerschile in Oranienburg were still occupied by about 3,000 troops. Soldiers were observed wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank, artillery, πotor transport or signal insignia and blue-bordered black epaulets with signal insignia and black-bordered crimson epaulets. The troops were engaged in close-order drill and motor vehicle maintenance duty. Other troops practiced carbine firing with live amountain on the troop training grounds north of the concentration camp.	90C

Driving school vehicles drove toward Zehdenick on 6 and 7 January, loaded with billeting equipment. The tank units that left on 2 January returned during the night of 11 January. They entered the camp through the rear gate. 1. Comment. The report indicates no changes in the occupation by units of the 25th Tank Div of the concentration camp, the Fanzer Schule, also called SS Kaserne, in Crantenburg. See that small detachments of these units started combat firing practice at the Templin troop training grounds after early January 1953. Respective information from Templin has been obtained but not before mid-January. According to the present report the following units of the division in the above mentioned installations were identified: the 162d Tank Regt with Colonel Chuk (fnu) as commanding officer or supply officer; an unidentified
